Life in New York

In Gotham, people are divided into two broad classes: those who have been robbed or mugged, and those who expect to be at any moment. The following is a true story of a tall, burly insurance executive in the second category.

He was standing near the center doors of a subway train on his way to work near Wall Street. At one stop, a well-dressed smaller man entered the car, bumped into the executive and turned to retreat from the car.

The executive instinctively reached into his inside breast pocket. Sure enough, his wallet was missing. As the doors were closing, he reached out and grabbed the smaller man by his jacket collar. The doors closed, with their rubber edges around the big man's wrist. The train started to roll, but the executive held on. Suddenly the jacket tore and the executive was left holding a patch of cloth, with no pickpocket attached.

On the way to his office, he began to consider moving from a city where no one can ride the subways without the ever-present risk of being robbed. A few minutes after he reached his office, the phone rang. It was his wife, calling to tell him he had left his wallet at home.

No trace of the innocent little man was ever found. He probably thought he had been the victim of an attempted mugging. By now, he may be holed up in the boondocks of Idaho. —Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser

The Oddsmaker

Was it only four months ago that Las Vegas oddsmaker Jimmie the Greek focused his bookmaking talents on the Democratic presidential race? Let's see, now. Ed Muskie, said Jimmie, was a 2-5 favorite to win the party nomination. Hubert Humphrey followed at 4-1; then came Scoop Jackson at 5-1. Ted Kennedy was rated at 20-1. Way down in the pack, at 50-1, were John Lindsay, George Wallace and that political joke from South Dakota, George McGovern. Faithfuls who took that last bet are now laughing, we are certain, all the way to the bank. —Charlotte (N.C.) Observer

It Makes Sense

Union electricians in the Mobile area recently voted not to seek a wage increase in the coming year. The idea was to help bring new life to a depressed construction industry in the district.

This is an example of pragmatic and responsible unionism. If the idea catches on, it could do more than wage-price ceilings to beat inflation. —Birmingham (Ala.) News

Garbagemen are married

CHATHAM TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Newlyweds Patricia and Tom Crawford don't have time to argue about who takes out the garbage. They're too busy hauling it around in a truck.

Patricia, 18, has been driving Crawford's big 10-speed garbage truck and helping him load refuse each morning since they were married Aug. 2.

Crawford is an employee of the Model Disposal Co. in this well-to-do suburb of New York City. Patricia doesn't get paid but with her help Tom is able to finish his work two hours earlier.

Cook's Store, once a thriving business in Sutton community southeast of Hope, is deserted now. Constructed originally before World War I as a Methodist church, the building then was converted into a store building by the late Newt Cook. The store was finally closed about 1936. Later attempts to turn the building into a wax manufacturing plant failed. At left is a scene in front of Cook's Store (The store front is at the extreme left) during the early 30s. The occasion? Markoe charged with piracy

By TOM REEDY

Associated Press Writer
SEATTLE (AP) — A 43-year-old objector to the war in Vietnam is under guard in a hospital with bullet wounds in the shoulder and leg inflicted by FBI agents in the climax of an elaborate airliner hijack.

Before it ended, the sky-jacking covered 12 hours and more than 800 miles—from Reno, Nev., to Vancouver, B.C., and back to Seattle.

Authorities identified the wounded man as Frank Markoe Sibley of Stateline, Nev., and said he would be charged with air piracy. Sibley's wounds were described as serious but not critical.

Sibley was shot in the hijacked United Air Line Boeing 727 late Friday night after his demand for 15 gold bars worth $15,000 had been met in Vancouver and $2 million in cash was delivered to him in Seattle.

Two FBI agents boarded the hijacked plane under the guise of airline employees after the sky pirate insisted on new crewmen.

While the agents were forklifted aboard the 727 semi-nude to prove they were unarmed, other FBI men prodded a gun on a pole into the cabin. With that weapon, the FBI agents confronted the hijacker in the cockpit as he held an army-type carbine on the airliner's pilot, the FBI said.

An FBI spokesman said about five shots were fired, two of them striking Sibley.

The FBI said Sibley tried to resist after he was hit by drawing a knife but was wrestled out of the plane and to the ground where he was overpowered.

GOP platform for convention ready

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) —

The Republican platform being readied for next week's GOP National Convention invites Democrats to vote for Richard Nixon and forsake what it says is "the radical clique" controlling the Democratic party.

The draft of a first platform section, endorsing a strong defense and standing pat on Nixon's peace-with-honor terms for a Vietnam settlement, was issued late Friday. Two sections on domestic issues are soon to follow.

The draft platform predicts that the Nixon bandwagon will be joined by "millions of concerned Democrats and concerned independents who will not, and cannot, take part in the convulsive leftward lurch of the national Democratic party."

Asserting that the choice for voters is between "strength and weakness for our country in the years to come," the platform extends its open-arms welcome to Democrats in a five-page preamble:

"We invite our troubled friends of other political affiliations to join with us in a new coalition for progress."

"Together let us reject the New Left prescription for folly and build surely on the solid achievements of President Nixon's first term."

The draft will reach the convention Tuesday. Its adoption is considered certain, though floor skirmishes on women's rights and school busing are possible.

The platform language suggested that Republican emphasis on alleged leftward leanings of the Democratic presidential nominee, Sen. George McGovern, will be a running theme of the GOP's campaign.

The GOP platform draft pledged a continuing quest for a Vietnam settlement permitting the people of Southeast Asia "to live in peace under political arrangements of their own choosing."

It endorsed Nixon's "refusal to accept terms which would dishonor his country" by yielding to Hanoi's demand that the United States scuttle the Saigon government in favor of a Communist-dominated regime.

The plank endorsed Nixon's offer to withdraw remaining American forces four months after an internationally supervised cease-fire has gone into effect and prisoners of war have been returned.

In addition to calling for the return of prisoners and an accounting of the missing in action, the plank declared:

"Here and now we reject all proposals to grant amnesty to those who have broken the law by evading military service."

The platform took a swipe at McGovern's proposal to cut defense spending by $32 billion in 1975, reduce U.S. uniformed strength to the lowest level since before the Korean War, and halt some weapons system development.

The defense plank denounced what it termed "the meat-ax slashes with which some Americans are now beguiled by the political opposition."

CHINESE ENTER TOURNAMENT

SANTO DOMINGO, D.R. (AP) — Communist China is sounding out Latin American baseball officials on the possibility of entering an amateur tournament scheduled for November in Nicaragua.

TV for the blind: through the skin

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two researchers have developed an electronic system which projects television images into the skin of blind persons to help them discern objects, measure distances, and even read normal print.

Widespread practical use of the device is still several years off, the scientists say, but eventually it could enable the blind to move about freely and enter professions from which they have previously been excluded.

The experimental system is the product of eight years of work by Drs. Carter C. Collins and Paul Bach-y-Rita at the University of the Pacific's Smith-Kettlewell Institute of Visual Research here.

A person using the portable system wears a pair of eyeglass frames on which is mounted a tiny television camera made up of hundreds of transistors.

The camera is connected through a vest-worn battery network to a shield of electrodes taped to the subject's stomach. The entire unit weighs less than five pounds.

When the transistors scan objects in front of them, they send the exact pattern to the

Kicking the habit the British way

LONDON (AP) — The British government is launching a new campaign against cigarettes with the chief target the smoker who can't kick the habit.

The Secretary for Social Services, Sir Keith Joseph, said Tuesday the government will publish tables twice a year grading cigarette brands according to their tar and nicotine content.

The campaign, which will start next year, represents a slight tactical change in the government's battle against tobacco addiction. Up to now, the main idea has been to stop people from starting to smoke.

Television advertising of cigarettes has already been banned, and all brands of British cigarettes carry the printed warning that "smoking can damage your health." So do all newspaper and magazine advertisements for cigarettes.

corresponding electrodes, which then trace the image on the stomach in a series of electrical impulses.

"Thus if we held up the shape of a square in front of a person wearing the camera, he would feel the electrodes literally drawing a square on his stomach," explained Collins.

The electrical stimulation is safe and painless, Collins said. He described it as feeling "like a light vibration, or a fly crawling across the skin."

He said the stomach was chosen because "it offers a large area of sensitive skin" and can support the square-foot matrix of 4mm diameter electrodes.

A blind person using the system can learn to "read" the alphabet in "a few dozen hours," Collins said. The system has been used on about 70 blind subjects at the institute, and several sighted volunteers wearing blindfolds.

Collins said the units might eventually be available for private use at a cost of about $5,000 apiece.

He feels the system's most immediate use would be for educating the congenitally blind and rehabilitating persons who have lost their sight.

FOOTPRINTS

By GEORGE SMITH

Lon Unger died last week at the age of 91.

Ole Lon, as he preferred to be called, was quite famous in North Arkansas; he was known as the Beachcomber of the Ozarks.

The father of nine sons and a single daughter, Ole Lon rode into Baxter County, Ark., "way back yonder" as he used to say, "ridin' an old horse and leading a cow named Daisy." He settled down on a rock farm near Salesville, worked around the county on occasion, hunted more often than not.

I met Ole Lon more than four years ago and he'll always have a special place in my memory book. You see, I was a bright-eyed, bushy-tailed college graduate, fresh out of East Texas State University and ready to tackle the world bare-knuckled. I wrote a feature on Ole Lon—the first one I penned after I got out of college.

I thought him quaint, a bit eccentric, a tad crazy.

He wore an old tattered artificial leather jacket, a cap with ear muffs, a tattered wool shirt, a Buffalo Bill ring worn smooth with age, brown loafers and khaki pants. A large button pinned to his jacket said "Have a good day," and a smaller one said simply "Good morning."

He was carrying a woman's purse over one shoulder, and a bedraggled Army ammunition bag over the other.

His hobby-occupation included treasure hunting along a mile-long stretch of State Highway 5 from his driveway to a nearby resort. He would shuffle-kick his way down one side of the road, acknowledging honks from passing cars with a thrown-up hand, then amble back home scrounging along the opposite ditch.

I often left off a bunch of bottles alongside the road then took special delight in listening to Lon tell about his great "find."

People, mainly tourists with their minute Brownies or bulkier Polaroids, often hailed him and had him pose for pictures. Ole Lon never seemed to mind. He relished the company.

He would sing while he searched the grass that bordered the roadway for bottles, knick-knacks or whatever . . . usually a haunting song about "my beloved mother way up there."

Well, Ole Lon isn't walking State Highway 5 anymore. And that stretch of road will seem mighty lonely without him.

us Liberty at the same time"

drug abuse starts with a puff

A recent study of narcotic addicts from city areas showed that 80% had previously used, or started with Marijuana. Because it is relatively inexpensive and easy to obtain, many young people try it.

Researchers point out that a person predisposed to ABUSE one drug, may be likely to abuse other, STRONGER drugs. Marijuana can be the start of something horrible.

To help curb this great menace of today's youth... every parent of teenagers should LEARN all they can about Marijuana and other drugs.

The parents' point of view must be from a position of levelheadedness and factual knowledge of the problem.

Yes, you CAN help!

QUICK QUIZ

Q—Does the U.S. president ever preside over sessions of Congress?
A—No. The vice-president serves as the Senate president, and is addressed there as "Mr. President."
Q—Do camels furnish milk for human consumption?
A—Yes. Arabs drink camel's milk and also make cheese of it. It is so rich and thick it forms hard lumps in tea or coffee.

Detroit in first place again

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer

The American League East race certainly has its ups and downs. Right now, the Detroit Tigers are up and the Baltimore Orioles are down.

Detroit moved into first place again in baseball's version of musical chairs with a 2-0 victory over the California Angels Friday night. Baltimore moved out by losing to the Minnesota Twins 3-1.

"I don't feel any different being in first place," said Detroit Manager Billy Martin, who said the same thing last week when his team dropped to second.

"It'll be an interesting race," said California Manager Del Rice. "Not too many guys are playing well in that Eastern Division. The Tigers have been playing losing ball and are in first place—that isn't too bad."

The Tigers have lost seven of their last 10 games and hold a half-game lead over Baltimore despite their inept play of late. That's because the Orioles have been almost as inept—losing six of ten.

The same can't be said of the volatile West race, where the Oakland A's hold a half-game lead over the Chicago White Sox.

The A's have a modest binge going, winning five of their last seven including Friday night's 8-0 triumph over the Cleveland Indians. The White have gaudier accomplishments of late with 20 of 25, including an 8-1 blitz of the Boston Red Sox Friday night.

In the other American League games, the Texas Rangers defeated the New York Yankees 11-2 and the Milwaukee Brewers walloped the Kansas City Royals 7-2.

In National League baseball play, the Houston Astros whipped the Philadelphia Phillies 4-3; the Montreal Expos downed the Atlanta Braves 4-3 in 11 innings; the Cincinnati Reds crushed the New York Mets 8-2; the Pittsburgh Pirates stopped the San Diego Padres 4-2; the Chicago Cubs blanked the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-0 and the St. Louis Cardinals turned back the San Francisco Giants 3-1.

Mickey Lolich pitched Detroit back into first place with a three-hitter, finally making his 19th victory on his fourth try.

California's Nolan Ryan was nicked for single runs in the second and fourth innings. Mickey Stanley doubled home the first run and the other came on a bases-loaded walk to Duke Sims.

Dick Woodson scattered five hits and Rod Carew hit a tie-breaking single in the fifth inning to help Minnesota turn back Baltimore.

Baltimore nicked Woodson for a run in the second inning on Brooks Robinson's sacrifice fly, but the Twins tied it in the fourth on Carew's double, a wild pickoff attempt that moved Carew to third and Harmon Killebrew's sacrifice fly. Singles by Glenn Borgmann, Steve Brye and Carew gave the Twins the lead to keep in the fifth.

John "Blue Moon" Odom pitched a four-hitter and Sal Bando and Bert Campaneris hit two-run homers to lead Oakland over Cleveland.

18-year-old wins Special Olympics medal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lan-ky Adonis Brown threw his right hand up with confidence as he signaled one more lap to go around the UCLA track on the mile run.

"When I first met him, he was a wild kid," coach Joe Holman, 42, said of the 18-year-old Brown. "Now he listens. He's a man now."

Adonis sprinted yards ahead of his closest pursuer to win the event in 5 minutes, 12 seconds, Wednesday in the International Special Olympics. A gold medal hung around his neck on a red ribbon.

Brown, like the 2,600 other competitors in the two-day program, is mentally retarded. His home is the Rosewood State Hospital in Baltimore, Md.

Shyly, Brown confirmed what

The Finley phenomenon

Propheteering Charlie O. vs. 'Stupidity'

CHICAGO—(NEA)—When Charlie Finley was 27 years old, half his lifetime ago, he lay flat on his back for 27 months in a sanatorium, with pneumonic tuberculosis.

In that idle period he devised a group insurance concept which eventually made him a millionaire.

"During those 27 months," he says, "I received the greatest education a man can get. I learned two things. One, if you have health and happiness, you're wealthy. Lose one and you realize how poor you are. Sports is my happiness.

"Two, the most beautiful things in life are free—fresh air, sunshine, water, friends. I don't think you'll find one person who'll say Charlie Finley threw me a curve or conned me."

You will find people who regard him as some kind of nut because of his capricious conduct and the radical concepts he has suggested to baseball. His Kelly green and gold uniforms with white shoes are ridiculed as softball outfits (Charlie likes the colors because they go well with the red hair on three of his seven children). Now other teams have adopted color schemes and adorn their players in form-fitting double knits.

"It's gratifying," admits Charlie, "because from the beginning people were saying Finley was kooky. When you're kooky, they think your ideas are kooky."

So Charlie advocated that the All-Star game be played at night, and now it is. He wanted the World Series started on Saturday for maximum weekend exposure, and now it is.

"I'm a salesman," he says. "Anything you're selling, it behooves you to get as much exposure as you possibly can. You've also got to put enthusiasm into it, because enthusiasm radiates enthusiasm."

And so for the Oakland Athletics in the last couple of years he has staged Hot Pants Days and Mustache Day and Farmer's Day and Bald-Headed Day, among other "Days."

More important, he has some very positive feelings about changing the basic game of baseball.

"My father worked 47 years in the steel mills and I often heard Dad say to his machine shop buddies, 'I don't want to be a millionaire. I just want to live like one. Funny thing, today the average working man can live like a millionaire. If it's too hot, all he has to do is turn up the air conditioning. If he wants entertainment, he doesn't even have to get up. He can push the button. So there is some of baseball's competition."

"Baseball is just as interesting today as it was in 1900, but NO MORE INTERESTING. Other sports are a hell of a lot more interesting than they were 25 years ago because they've been smart and done something . . . and have had leaders that know something about selling and competition."

So Charlie, to speed the game up, has proposed that a man be given first base on three balls. He would like to see pinch runners without the original runner leaving the game. He favors pinch hitters for the pitcher at all times.

"There's only one thing that's even worse than a 1-0 game," he says. "That's a no-hitter until it gets to the eighth or ninth inning. Most of the time the catcher and pitcher are just playing catch. People don't go to ball games to see two people playing catch. They want to see action—guys running around those bases, outfielders running after those balls, balls going out of the park. Boom, boom, boom."

Why does baseball maintain the status quo?

"I can sum it up in one word. Stupidity."

"Some of these people, if they had a brain in regard to imagination, they'd be idiots, they're so damn stupid. We haven't had many owners in baseball with any imaginative thinking."

"Baseball was the only sport years ago. All they had to do was open the gates and people would kiss your fanny to get in. But that's not the case today. Baseball is faced with competition."

TEAM MORALE APPEARED HIGH

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)

— About 150 Arkansas Razorbacks reported for physical examinations Friday, and Coach Frank Broyles said team morale appeared high.

Today was press day for the players and two-day practices will begin at 9 a.m. Monday.

"We're excited about it (the season)," Broyles said. "Everyone seems to be in good spirits. That's about all we can tell right now."

Broyles said he was not able to give the players a thorough look, but said he thought a majority of them took their summer workouts serious. "That's an encouraging sign," Broyles said.

Arkansas opens its season Sept. 9 in Little Rock against the University of Southern California.

WINNING at weekend tennis improving your doubles game

By Tony Trabert with Joe Hyams

3. The Serving Position

I served from the center stripe when playing singles. Is this a good position for serving in doubles?

No, because when you run to your ideal position at net, you are going at an angle away from the most likely direction of the service return. It's better to serve from the center of the area which you must cover.

Where should I stand?

The basic technique of doubles is to divide responsibility for coverage of the court between you and your partner. At the same time you are trying to divide your opponent's possibilities in half.

When you are serving you should stand halfway between the singles sideline and the center of the court. That way you are in the center of the area which is your responsibility and you can rush to the net in a direct line to handle the service return.
